TIMELESS A Collection of Poetry By Elena Brytan After developing the habit of adding her own lines to special occasion cards for friends, she gradually moved to creating her own vivid wordscapes embracing the experiences she had in the UK, tempered by the time she had spent growing up in the Ukraine. Her poetry is imbued with the contrasting earthy spirituality of the rich and fertile Slavic fields and the stark material reality which confronted her when, in 1999, she moved to London to further her Accountancy career. After visiting Poetry venues in the UK capital, she wrote shrewd and astonishingly insightful observations of life in the Metropolis and indeed, the rest of the UK. Her confidence writing in English grew as she received much positive and enthusiastic feedback from others who heard her work. In addition to enjoying outdoors activities such as walking in the countryside and sailing she continues to pursue her creative potential writing and painting in optimistic words and vivid hopeful colours.
